

[illegible]

The diagram illustrates a network of 15 personality traits, each represented by a circle. The traits are interconnected by lines of varying thickness and style (solid or dashed). The traits are color-coded: dark purple for positive traits, light purple for mixed traits, and white for negative traits.

- Positive Traits (Dark Purple): aesthetic sensitivity, creative imagination, productive, responsible, assertive, organized, respect, sociability, energy, intellectual curiosity, compassion.
- Mixed Traits (Light Purple): depressed, emotional volatility, anxious.
- Negative Traits (White): sick, angry.
- Central Trait (Dark Purple): trust.

The connections between the traits are as follows:

- Trust (Central Node): Connected to all other traits.
- Productive: Connected to responsible, assertive, and creative imagination.
- Responsible: Connected to productive, assertive, and sick.
- Assertive: Connected to productive, responsible, and trust.
- Creative Imagination: Connected to productive and aesthetic sensitivity.
- Aesthetic Sensitivity: Connected to creative imagination and respect.
- Respect: Connected to aesthetic sensitivity and organized.
- Organized: Connected to respect and sociability.
- Sociability: Connected to organized and energy.
- Energy: Connected to sociability and angry.
- Angry: Connected to energy and intellectual curiosity.
- Intellectual Curiosity: Connected to angry and emotional volatility.
- Emotional Volatility: Connected to intellectual curiosity, compassion, and anxious.
- Compassion: Connected to emotional volatility and anxious.
- Anxious: Connected to compassion, depressed, and trust.
- Depressed: Connected to anxious, trust, and sick.
- Sick: Connected to depressed and responsible.