

CS: Lagged for S01, argument

The diagram illustrates a network of 15 personality traits, each represented by a circular node. The nodes are interconnected by arrows, indicating relationships. Solid purple arrows represent significant correlations, while dashed purple arrows represent non-significant ones. Self-loops are shown on several nodes, indicating self-correlations.

Nodes (from top to bottom, left to right):

- angry (light grey)
- depressed (light grey)
- trust (dark purple)
- productive (dark purple)
- compassion (dark purple)
- argument (white)
- responsible (dark purple)
- sociability (dark purple)
- anxious (light grey)
- organized (dark purple)
- energy (dark purple)
- creative imagination (dark purple)
- assertive (dark purple)
- intellectual curiosity (dark purple)
- emotional volatility (light grey)
- aesthetic sensitivity (dark purple)

Key relationships (solid arrows):

- angry to respect
- depressed to respect
- trust to respect
- trust to anxious
- trust to organized
- productive to respect
- productive to sociability
- productive to organized
- compassion to organized
- compassion to argument
- responsible to energy
- sociability to energy
- sociability to intellectual curiosity
- sociability to creative imagination
- sociability to assertive
- anxious to creative imagination
- anxious to assertive
- organized to assertive
- energy to intellectual curiosity
- creative imagination to assertive
- assertive to aesthetic sensitivity
- intellectual curiosity to emotional volatility
- emotional volatility to aesthetic sensitivity
- self-loops on respect, sociability, anxious, organized, energy, creative imagination, and assertive.

[illegible]